Meet Your NRA Competitive Shooting Division

By NRA Staff, Photos by Lloyd Hill

There are 26 people in the NRA Competitive Shooting Division and each contributes to the Division's overall task of sanctioning over 11,000 local matches, maintaining nearly 120,000 shooter classifications and conducting 47 National Championships each year. We hope you enjoy "meeting them" through this mini-series.

Tournament Resources Department

Members: Beth Epley, Manager (r.); Marsha Moody, Assistant Manager/Championship Coordinator; and Woody Arenas, Marketing Coordinator

What We Do: Our department is the newest within the Competitive Shooting Division. As NRA Championships have grown, so has the need for resources to support those championships. The Tournament Resources Department is responsible for providing volunteer support, not only for championships, but also for special events throughout the NRA; recruiting sponsors; maintaining over 100 championship trophies (shipping, storage, cataloging, in-house display set-up and break-down, cleaning and general up keep); event planning; event promotion; championship awards development and purchasing; and National Championships logistics and resource support. Our team is always on the go, working towards making each event you attend professional and as well promoted as possible. The next time you are at an NRA national championship and you see the awards, posters, advertisements, volunteer staff, trophies, literature or sponsors—you will know the team that helped to procure and coordinate these tournament resources.

Contact Information: For information on Tournament Resources contact us at (703) 267-1469 or by e-mail at volunteer@nrahq.org. Please look us up at the next championship.

Silhouette and Black Powder Department

Members: Greg Connor, National Manager (l.) and Jonathan Leighton, Program Coordinator

What We Do: Our department is one of 10 in the NRA Competitive Shooting Division. While we are one of the smallest departments, we are responsible for all NRA-sanctioned Silhouette and Black Powder Target Rifle matches. In addition to providing all administrative support for these disciplines, we spend our winter months coordinating logistical efforts needed for the following summer in support of conducting championship matches across the country. We strive to attract new shooters to competitive shooting sports, and we even get to shoot a little ourselves from time to time. If we can ever be of assistance, please contact us directly. To get started in Black Powder shooting, visit www.nrahq.org/compete/blackpowder.asp. For Silhouette shooting, visit www.nrahq.org/compete/silhouette.asp.

Contact Information: For information on the NRA Silhouette and Black Powder Target Rifle programs, please contact us at (703) 267-1465 or by e-mail at silhouette@nrahq.org. Thanks for your support.

Website of the Month

If you've had problems getting a clear view of both the target and sight while shooting iron sights, or have stopped shooting because presbyopia limits your success, you're not alone. TruFocals, makers of the first adjustable-focus glasses that are getting positive reviews amongst shooters, has launched a new website. Their website provides an online community for shooters in need of information about their vision changes and practical tips on how to recover their shooting accuracy. There will also be commentary from doctors, competitive shooters and people who have used TruFocals. Join them at <http://shoot.trufocals.com/>.

National Match History Book

Ten years of research and documentation have culminated into a comprehensive history of the National Matches, from the beginnings at New Jersey's Sea Girt and Creedmoor in New York, to the present-day home on the shores of Lake Erie at the Camp Perry, OH, training site (see page 3 for more information). The National Matches: 1903-2003 The First 100 Years... is a fascinating look at NRA history and an excellent addition to your home library. The book will be available for $59.95 from the NRA Program Materials Center this Winter under item # CC19740. Visit <http://materials.nrahq.org/go/home.aspx>.

Reloading Maintenance Kits

RCBS has announced the creation of two new kits meant to safeguard reloading equipment. The new Press Maintenance Kit (MSRP: $22.95) and Die Maintenance Kit (MSRP: $28.95) contain the cleaning gear needed to keep reloading equipment lasting longer and working harder. Available now, these two maintenance kits come with the essential chemicals, oils and brushes to clean reloading presses and dies. For more information visit www.rcbs.com.

Correction: The Silhouette article on page 14 of the September issue of SSUSA should have listed the distance to the turkey targets as 385 meters rather than 380 yards. Also, the possible score was 120 rather than 100 as reported.

New Any Sight Match/Tactical Rifle Category

Former Navy SEAL Trey Tuggle, NRA's 3-Gun and Tactical Rifle Manager, reports the unveiling of a new rifle category at this year's National Matches. "As the battlefield changes, so do the firearms that are used in them as indicated by the increasing use of optics by our military. In response to this trend, we have established a new category within the Match Rifle section of the rulebook and included this event in the 2010 National Matches. The photo above is David McFarling, winner of the first Any Sight match/tactical rifle category at Camp Perry this year. Early indications are that this new category will be heavily sponsored and attended in the 2011 National Matches." Included in the draft rulebook language is: "...A competitor using an Any Sight rifle under Rule 3.3.2 will only be eligible for awards in their own division... bipods may be attached but not utilized. Ammunition will be restricted to no larger than .35 caliber...."

A Win-Win Situation

Competitors at the Black Powder Cartridge Rifle National Silhouette Championship got a helping hand from some dedicated students. Third-year students from Trinidad State Junior College's Gunsmithing program donated their time to repair guns during the summer event, held at NRA's Whittington Center near Raton, NM.

The gunsmiths worked on nearly 40 guns belonging to the 200 championship competitors. Trinidad's program, sponsored by Brownells, gives advanced students real-world experience repairing gun problems. At the Silhouette Championship students also learned valuable knowledge about working under the time pressure of getting shooters back to the line. According to Pete Brownell, President of Brownells, "This is exactly the kind of thing the Program was designed to do—get the students hands-on experience solving real gun repair problems." For more information about the TSJC gunsmithing program, visit www.trinidadstate.edu/index.php/gunsmithing. ☒

THE NEW LEATHERMAN MUT

BY NRA STAFF

At this year's SHOT Show, Leatherman unveiled two variants of their latest multi-tool: The "Firearm" and the "EOD" (Explosive Ordnance Disposal) Military Utility Tool—or MUT. After a year and a half of research and collaboration with members of the USAMU, competitive shooters, law enforcement and military snipers, Leatherman has created the first multi-tool that is purpose-built for firearms maintenance. In addition to the functions you'd expect in a multi-tool, the MUT includes several tools designed specifically for the M16/AR15 family of rifles including: Optics wrench, bolt override tool to clear jams without disassembly, take-down pin punch, cleaning rod handle and carbon scraper—18 tools in all. The 17-tool EOD version does not have regular pliers and replaces the take-down pin punch with a C4 explosives punch used to imbed a blasting cap into plastic explosives. The pliers are made of heat-treated 420 stainless steel and include a threaded hole for mounting onto a cleaning rod as a T-handle.

Measuring 5 in. x 1.5 in. x 1 3/4 in. and weighing just over .5 lb., the MUT is still a "toolbox on a belt." New to the traditional Leatherman design is a sheath-mounted, 12-point box wrench for 3/8- and 1/2-inch bolt heads. The sheath's snap-release strap allows flexible mounting on a range bag, belt or pack and has room for extra screwdriver bits.

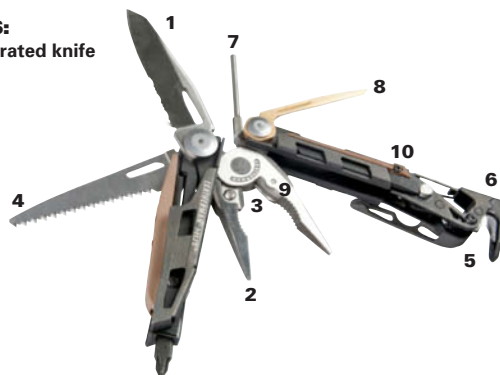

Using the included Torx #8 driver, the MUT is engineered for easy field replacement of commonly-worn parts like the wire cutter blades, cutting hook, punch and carbon scraper. With the MOLLE sheath and on-board scope adjustment wrench, the MUT may just be the most efficient and useful toolkit you can take to the firing line. Throw-in the Leatherman 25-year warranty and you begin to ask: "How can I not own one?"

Portland, Oregon-based Leatherman Tool Group has been producing multi-tools, knives and lights since 1983. To learn more, visit Leatherman at www.leatherman.com/MUT for purchase details and a three-minute video. ③

PARTIAL LIST OF THE MUT TOOLS:

1. Three-inch 420HC SS straight/serrated knife
2. Needle-nose and regular pliers
3. Replaceable wire, hard-wire and stranded-wire cutters
4. Saw
5. Replaceable cutting hook
6. Bolt override tool / hammer
7. Replaceable punch
8. Replaceable carbon scraper
9. Threaded cleaning rod mount
10. Carabiner clip / bottle opener

It probably isn't news to you that noises in excess of 85 decibels are harmful to hearing, or that most gunfire exceeds 130 decibels. Fortunately, there are plenty of solutions to fit your particular needs and budget—from foam plugs and passive muffs to digital in-the-ear models. Below are samples of what's available from industry leaders. See the related article on page 14.

Peltor Tactical 6S

Non-harmful sounds are amplified by as much as 19 dB, while this unit electronically suppresses sounds over 79 dB. The headset includes a separate microphone, receiver, amplifier and volume control in each cup for clear reception. The muffs fold easily into the shape of a ball—small enough for pocket storage. Available in both over-and behind-the-head styles, the 6S will run for up to 200 hours on four AAA batteries. Contact MidwayUSA; (800) 243-3220; www.midwayusa.com.

Caldwell E-MAX Low-Profile Electronic Hearing Protection

The E-MAX muffs have advanced amplification circuitry with two microphones for clear communication, an NRR of 23 dB and shooters can adjust the volume control for environmental sounds from 0 to 20 dB. Sounds above 85 dB are immediately shut off for a split second to prevent ear damage. A cushioned headband provides shooters with greater comfort. Contact Battenfeld Technologies; (573) 445-9200; www.battenfeldtechnologies.com.

Remington MP-22

Recognizing the growing number of women participating in the shooting sports, Remington's MP-22 women's hearing protection earmuffs bring a touch of femininity to the line. The MP-22 features soft foam earcups and an adjustable headband with gun stock cutout that won't hinder your shot. The MP-22 has a noise reduction rating of 22 dB and features the distinguishable white "R" on each side. Contact Cabelas; (800) 237-4444; www.cabelas.com.

Howard Leight Impact Sport Ear Muffs

The Howard Leight Impact Sport Ear Muffs have an extremely low profile, noise reduction rating of 22 dB and amplification of low-level ambient sound. These comfortable muffs are water-resistant, have integrated power and volume controls, an external audio plug and a 350-hour battery life from two AAA batteries (included). Also has a four-hour auto shut off and folds nicely for compact storage. Contact Howard Leight/ Sperian; (800) 343-3411; www.howardleight.com.

Pro-Ears GOLD Series

One of the industry leaders in hearing protection—Pro-Ears offers its GOLD Series line of earmuffs for serious shooters. Every model features a fully enclosed military-grade circuit board in both cups for protection from the elements and gold connectors for the best conductivity. Each circuit board is equipped with an LED alert light so you can see exactly how your unit is working, computer-controlled auto shut off, an improved NRR and all-day comfort thanks to patented ear cushions with no-sweat seals and an adjustable, padded headband. Contact Altus Brands/Pro-Ears; (800) 891-3660; www.proears.com.

Pro Slim Gold

With its medium profile cup, the Pro Slim Gold is a good choice for pistol shooters or IDPA and IPSC competitors.

Sporting Clays Gold

The Sporting Clays model has been worn by a majority of Sporting Clay Champions and features a chop-side cup with felt rifle protection so you can shoulder your gun without scratching your stock.

Walkers Power Muffs

The ultra-light-weight Power Muffs come with four wind-resistant, high-frequency microphones, two on each side, providing a strong sense of sound directionality and amplifying safe sounds up to nine times that of normal hearing. Adjustable Frequency Tuning (AFT) allows wearers to tune in to specific sound frequencies and custom set their muffs to match individual hearing needs. Power Muffs have an NRR of 24 dB with two independent volume controls. Contact Walker's; (877) 269-8490; www.walkersgameear.com/enhancement_muffs.html.

Radians

Simple but extremely effective, these foam plugs offer a natural fit and seal for the ear canal. The tapered shape and low pressure, self-adjusting foam allows for a longer, more comfortable fit and quick recovery. The plugs have a noise reduction rating of 32 dB and are available corded or un-corded in several multi-pack options.

Radians Custom Molded Plugs

These come in a do-it-yourself kit with easy-to-follow instructions, providing a soft, yet permanent custom fit that molds in 10 minutes with an NRR of 26 dB. Available in tan, blue, orange and red in individual bags or multi-kit options. Visit www.radians.com for an online instructional video. Contact Radians; (877) 723-4267; www.radians.com.

Howard Leight Pilot Ear Plugs

Sperian Protection offers reliable, long-wearing performance with the Howard Leight Pilot Push-in Ear plug. This lightweight hybrid design features an innovative navigation stem that helps you achieve a snug and comfortable fit in the ear canal with a simple fingertip twist. Made with Howard Leight's patented Max polyurethane foam and popular bell shape design which help eliminate the 'stuffed' feeling that some plugs can give, with no need to roll them down before insertion. The Pilots offer a consistent NRR 26 and, with a skin resistant to dirt, they can be worn for several days without compromising hygiene or protection. Contact Howard Leight/ Sperian; (800) 343-3411; www.howardleight.com.

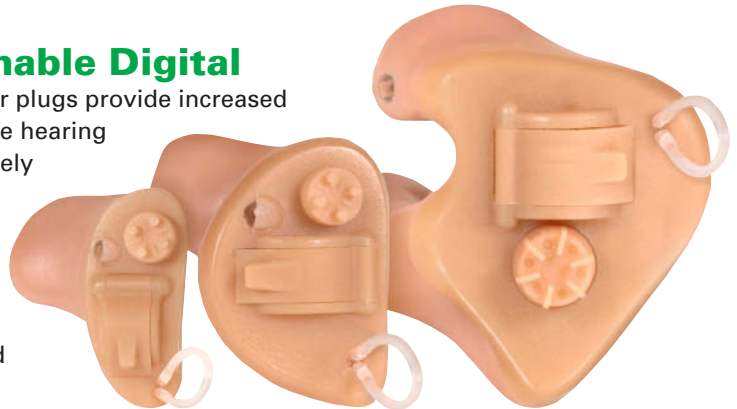

SureFire EP3 Sonic Defender

Sonic Defender is made from ultra-soft, hypoallergenic polymer, ergonomically shaped with an adjustable stem design for a secure and comfortable fit. It has a NRR of 16 dB and a product life of 3-6+ months depending on care and usage. For users with larger ear canals, the EP4 Sonic Defenders Plus model offers the same features as EP3, and a NRR of 19 dB. Available in single left/right sets or in packages of 25 sets. Contact SureFire; (800) 828-8809; www.surefire.com.

E.A.R. Electronic Programmable Digital

E.A.R. Inc.'s Electronic Programmable Digital ear plugs provide increased fidelity for those experiencing slight to moderate hearing loss. They are available in full, half and completely in-the-canal models and come with a 2-or 3-year warranty. Shells can be made in tan with red and blue markings to easily distinguish left and right. Music/audio upgrades and wireless two-way radio communication are available as options and each unit is lanyard ready. Contact E.A.R., Inc.; (800) 525-2690; www.earinc.com.

E.A.R. Acoustical Filtered Chameleon Ears

E.A.R.'s Acoustical Filtered Chameleon Ears suppress louder sounds such as wind noise and gunfire to a more comfortable level while still allowing shooters to discern speech clearly. The units can also be made with acoustical filters which will provide greater protection against high-level impulse noises from 140-190 dB.

They are available in a variety of colors, and if you want to add a little fun, they also come in colors that change with exposure to sunlight and/or body heat as well as glow-in the dark options. Ear impressions are required for proper manufacturing and custom fit. Visit www.earinc.com for more information. ©

Submitted by Wayne Nunn

16 Competitors

The weekend started out stormy but cleared up by the time Saturday's matches began bringing a cool, dry, breezy weekend to San Antonio. The championship is a 320-shot match fired over 2 days, the first day being metallic sights and second day being any sights. During a day's course-of-fire, shooters fire a Dewar match (combination of a 50-yard and 100-yard match), a 100-yard match, a 50-meter match and another 50-yard match.

Saturday's match saw Katie Bridges, a junior from Kingsland, TX, winning the Metallic Sight Match with a 1593-113X, Virginia McLemore of Socorro, NM, won second with a 1590-107X and Ken Benyo of The Woodlands, TX, took third with a 1589-99X.

Sunday's match saw great weather and a little less breeze as firing began. Benyo slowly took over the lead by firing a 1600-138X, Ordie Jones of Amarillo, TX, fired a 1599-117X for second, McLemore fired a 1598-126X for third and Bridges won fourth with a 1595-120X. So as the smoke cleared, Benyo became State Champion with a 3189-237X, McLemore won second with a 3188-233X and Bridges went home with third with a 3188-233X (had to go back a couple of matches to break the tie).

Thanks to Manual Daniel for calling the match and to Bill Huddleston for doing stats and to all the champions that came to shoot. The course of the weekend saw the STMTC Range's first 600 and several personal best scores.

Category and class champions were High Senior to Ordie Jones 3185-223X, High Woman to Virginia McLemore 3188-233X, High Junior to Bridges 3188-233X, First Master to Ordie Jones 3185-223X, First Expert to Bridges 3188-233X, First Sharpshooter to Anita Dickason, Waxahachie, TX, 3147-149X and First Marksman to Nathanael Molder, a junior from Santo, TX, 3181-203X.

One competitor shot both scope and iron sights and 45 percent of the total competitors chose to shoot scope only. The temperature started in the low 60s but soon climbed to 80 degrees. The wind direction was fairly consistent from 600 to 900 yards at 5 to 15 mph causing most missed shots to be high or low.

Steve Maurer from Bolivar, OH, won first place in the iron sight aggregate with a score of 30/40 after winning a sudden-death shoot-off with John Haagen from Clymer, PA, who settled for the second iron sight spot. The scope class was won by current National Champion Brian Chilson from Nelson, PA, with his score of 32/40. Second scope was won by Bob Bloyer after a long shoot-off with match director John Powers making him third scope.

THE PRICE OF SHOOTING— HEARING LOSS?

BY NRA STAFF

NIH Study: Supported by grants from the National Institutes of Health, David M. Nondahl and colleagues conducted a 1999 study on recreational firearm use and hearing loss. As one of the most focused research projects on this topic, 3,753 participants in Beaver Dam, WI, aged 48 to 92 years, responded to interviews and participated in hearing exams to assess the relation between recreational firearm use and hearing loss in a population of older adults.

After adjusting for age and other factors, high frequency (4, 6 and 8 kHz) hearing thresholds tended to worsen as years of shooting exposure increased. This was true for both target shooters and hunters. The risk of having a marked high-frequency hearing loss increased 7 percent for every five years the men had hunted. Thirty-eight percent of the target shooters and 95 percent of the hunters reported never wearing hearing protection while shooting in the past year.

Dr. Thelen Interview: The website 4hearingloss.com published a 2006 interview with Dr. Michael Thelen (Doctor of Audiology) titled: Gunshots—Hearing's not-so-silent enemy.

[Extract] "To understand hearing loss, we first must understand the dynamics of hearing. Noises result in airborne sound waves that create pressure as they enter the ear," Thelen explained. "The eardrum and ossicles (tiny bones called the hammer, anvil and stirrup) turn this pressure into mechanical energy, which in turn creates hydraulic energy in the fluid of the cochlea, a snail-shaped organ in the inner ear. Rows of hair cells are then stimulated and the vibrating hairs create sensorineural signals that transfer sounds to the brain via the auditory nerve. Continued exposure to loud noises damages the rows of microscopic hair cells. Once we lose hair cells, hearing is lost.

"As we gradually lose our hearing, we don't notice it because we still hear the sound of a human voice, for example. Vowels are generally spoken as low-frequency sounds (for example, the 'aw' sound in thaw) and can be spoken louder, but the consonant sounds (like the 'th' in thaw) are high-frequency sounds that can't be spoken louder. Thus a person with a high-frequency hearing loss can't tell the difference between thaw, raw and law. This is why many people who begin to lose their hearing believe other people are simply mumbling," Thelen said.

"Preventing hearing loss is easy and convenient for target shooters. Those who shoot trap, for example, wear earmuffs or earplugs while shooting. But hunting calls for specialized devices that allow normal sounds to be heard while clipping or otherwise dampening the high-decibel sounds of gunfire. The Walker's Game Ear muffs, for example, can be adjusted electronically to allow normal sounds to enter and can even be set to amplify the sounds of approaching game. When a loud noise such as a gunshot enters the speakers outside the muffs, it is temporarily silenced with the electronic clip.

These are the results measured by Dr. Rauno Pääkkönen during the Finnish Suppressor Project with an FN FAL .308 rifle both as unsuppressed (red line) and equipped with a T8L1 Scout Reflex suppressor (black line).

"In-the-ear plugs that mold to the outer contours of the ear generally do not seal as well as rollup-style plugs that fit tightly in the ear canal, or as well as muff-style protection. Ear plugs with a mechanical valve or filter that are supposed to allow normal sounds to pass while filtering loud noises generally are ineffective."

Finnish Study: A 1992 study in Finland tested the use of fire-arm suppressors to assess the adverse effects of shooting ranges on nearby settled areas and to investigate possible solutions for hearing injuries among army officers, sport shooters and hunters. The chart above depicts the reduction of noise from a .308 cal rifle with and without the use of a suppressor. The complete study can be found at <http://guns.connect.fi/rs/measure.html>. ©

Sound is measured in frequencies and decibels. Frequency indicates the pitch of a sound; decibels (dB) measure the loudness. Ten dB is barely audible; normal conversation occurs between 40 to 60 dB; a jet engine roars at 130 dB from 100 feet away. Sounds that are 120 dB or more can damage hearing and cause pain.

INAUGURAL NRA NATIONAL METRIC CHAMPIONSHIP

Story and Photos by Hap Rocketto with an Introduction by H.Q. Moody, NRA National Rifle Manager

"Metric shooting in the United States became popular in 1976 when the NRA established a course-of-fire to introduce conventional shooters to the international style of shooting—with its specific equipment requirements and smaller target rings. In an effort to get more shooters firing the international target, a course-of-fire was started that allowed NRA equipment but used the metric target, called NRA 3-Position. Over the years, NRA 3-Position grew to where about half of the small-bore shooters shot metric position and the remaining shot conventional. In the 1970s, the National Smallbore Rifle Position Championships also moved to metric targets. The weather conditions at Camp Perry are not designed for the international style of shooting. So in 2008, the NRA moved back to the conventional target and, in an effort to meet the needs of the metric shooter, a new metric championship was planned. The first NRA National Metric Championship took place this year during July."

H.Q. Moody, National Rifle Manager

Bristol, Indiana's Saint Joseph Valley Rifle and Pistol Club hosted this first-of-its-kind tournament. The competitors commented favorably on the excellent 100-point facility, emphasizing its covered firing line, excellent target frames and modern amenities.

The first NRA National Metric Prone Championship opened under skies which threatened rain, but failed to deliver. The Chief Wa'Ka'-De Rifle Range was in tip top condition as 41 competitors from California to New England took to the line to contest for the first national title of its type.

Position

Good things come in small packages as far as the 2010 Inaugural National Metric Position Championships are concerned. Abigail Fong, a petite New Yorker, opened the match with a solid 394 score in the metallic sight prone event, four points ahead of her nearest competitor. All-American Sarah Beard made a strong run in standing but Fong's 372 was a point better and that was as close as the race would get. Jeff Doerschler, a former national three-position champion, made the race a tad interesting in kneeling when he denied Fong a clean sweep of the metallic matches by winning that match with a 382 to Fong's 380.

In the end, Fong hammered the opposition and won the metallic championship with an 1146-37X. A pair of young Hoosiers, defending their state's honor on home territory, came in second and third. With an 1120-34X, Nehemiah Gillman, the 2009 Indiana Junior position champ, took silver while Beard posted an 1119-32X for bronze.

Team competition was a paper match in which Fong and Doerschler, representing the Corporal Digby Hand Schützenverein, won the match with a combined score of 2263-62X. The Indiana State Rifle and Pistol Association sponsored the silver medal team of Gillman and Beard who shot a 2239-66X, while the third place team of Louma and Ellis, firing as the Last Minute Pair, combined for 2192-40X.

The second day of competition was the Any Sight match and opened with a photo finish in the prone stage as Wes Robinson, Black Hawk Rifle Club, J. Michael O'Conner, Jackson, MI, and Beard all shot 395s.

O'Conner's 24 X's earned him the laurels. Beard won the standing match with a 372-11X, followed by Greg Drown, the defending National Any Sight Conventional 3-Position Champion, at 370-8X, and Doerschler with a 368-13X.

Doerschler broke into the winner's column for a second time with another kneeling winning score of 377-12X which, supported by his consistently high placement in the earlier stages, gave him the Any Sight championship with a score of 1138-48 X. The second place score of 1133-32X belonged to Beard while Drown took third with an 1128-35X.

Fong emerged on top in the grand aggregate with a 2271-76X. Doerschler and Beard followed with a 2255-73X and 2252-64X,

Prone

Metallic sight competition began with Eitan Barazani setting a fast pace by opening the tournament with a 50-meter score of 398-24X, two points ahead of second and third place finishers Mike Seery of the Air Force Academy Rifle team, and West Point coach Ron Wigger who were separated by only 1X.

Former National prone champion Kevin Nevius took the Dewar match (20 shots at 50 and 100 meters) with a 396-23X, a point ahead of Eitan Barazani's 395-21X and third place shooter Sharon Barazani's 393-12X.

The day closed with 40 shots at 100 yards and Nevius posted a pair of 197s totaling a 394-16X for the win. A 391-19X by Jim Cronin was good for second and Ginger McLemore, a Roberts Team veteran, took third with a 391-17X.

The metallic sight champion was Nevuis with an 1181-56X. Eitan Barazani, who had been nip and tuck with Nevius all day, came in second with an 1178-58X and third place went to Mark Delcotto, a skilled long-range high power rifleman who has made a near seamless transition to smallbore, who shot an 1176-60X.

Nancy Tompkins-Gallagher's 1167-51X was first in the Master class as McLemore took the Expert class with an 1174-55X as well as the intermediate senior award. Senior Charlie Kemp took that category with an 1170-57X, just as Seery earned junior honors with his 1168-59X. First woman and high Sharpshooter was Sharon Barazani, 1172-63, while an 1139-30X by Whitney Everest was the best Marksman score.

The any sight phase of the championship was bathed in sunlight and hats were pulled down tight to block out the bright light. Eighty-one-year-old Joe Farmer, the only person to have shot a perfect 400 on the metric target Dewar course, took the early lead with a pair of 1199-13Xs. Rick Curtis, an Arizona rifleman, was second with his 396-26X while Kemp posted a 395-29X for third.

McLemore came on hard with a 394-26X in the Dewar winning by a thin 3X margin over Farmer. Seery was third with an identical 394, but with only 19Xs. Curtis closed the day with a victory at 100 yards on the back of his 391-16X. Nevius made a last lunge at the any sight title with a 390-22X, just three Xs ahead of another hard holding senior, Cal Cooper, who fired a 390-19X.

Tompkins-Gallagher lead the women with her 1166-59X. Drew Cup veteran Elijah Ellis's 1158-50X earned him the junior championship while Sharon Barazani, a fellow Sharpshooter, posted an 1165-48X to win the class. William Wilkerson bested all Marksmen with his 1159-55X.

Following in Farmer's footsteps, two seniors, Kemp and Dave Cramer, paired up as the Black Hawk Winchester 52Ds to take the team title.

When all the scores were tallied Nevius, 2357-124X, notched a historical footnote as the first NRA Metric Prone Champion, as well as the first person to double up Metric and Conventional titles. McLemore, 2351-130X, and Farmer, 2346-122X, finished second and third, respectively.

The match was heavily contested, well run, and blessed with good weather; in other words a great tournament. The prize table was impressive, so much so that each competitor had to file an IRS W-9 form to cover any winnings. Although it started smaller than wished, it is anticipated that once word get out, the National Metric Prone Championship participation will grow by leaps and bounds.

There are certain constants at the National Smallbore Rifle Matches: Good fellowship, hard-holding competition, heat and humidity.

The 2010 matches were no exception when nearly 300 competitors renewed old friendships and began making new ones.

1LT Chris Abalo, West Point All-American, posted a 400-36X prone to quickly jump into the lead in the metallic sight portion of the 3-Position Championship. Unfazed by the competition, Garrett Rabel, an intermediate junior sharpshooter from Livernia, TX, stepped up and shot a 395-17X in the standing event to replace Abalo on the leader board. In the final match of the day Hudson, New Hampshire's Brian Jylkka and the Army's SSG Shane Barnhart battled it out to a 396 kneeling tie that was broken in Jylkka's favor by his higher X count.

In the aggregate, a trio of shooters who had been traveling below the radar all day emerged as the top three in the Metallic Sight Championship. Tied in score, and only separated by a few Xs, Abigail Fong emerged as champion with a score of 1184-68X. Junior Caitlin Morrissey, a member of the 2010 NCAA Championship Texas Christian University Rifle Team, was second with an 1184-67X. Taking third place was the silver medalist at the Metric Position Championship—former National Champion Jeffrey Doerschler.

The Any Sight championship would be a hot day, both in scores and temperature. Barnhart moved into the front of the pack with a 400-37X prone as nearly all of his close competition dropped points in the wind.

Lisette Grunwell-Lacey, of the Niantic Connecticut Sportsmen's Club, bested the field in standing with a 386-10X. Three 383s were in the mix for the next two places and Remington Lyman, making a play for the Any Sight win, had a 383-16X. Denver, CO's Max Burkhardt was third with a 383-13X. Barnhart posted a 383-12X to maintain his grip on the lead.

Douglas C. McAllister III, of Hagerstown, MD, won kneeling with a 393-14X. Joe Graf, a mainstay of Rhode Island shooting, was second with a 392-14X, edging out third place Barnhart by two Xs.

When the scores for both days were totaled, it was no surprise that Barnhart emerged as the champion, picking up his fourth Frank Parsons Trophy with a score of 2358-126X and another D.I. Boyd Trophy as the service champion. Louma shot a 2349-113X and left Perry loaded down with a silver medal as runner up, the Winchester Trophy as high civilian, the Mary Camp Trophy as high woman and the Cobb Trophy as junior champion. Earning the bronze medal and the Putnam Trophy was Megan M. Lee with a score of 2343-93X.

Ronald Durcholz, of Orchard Park, NY, was the Senior Champion and was awarded the Robert Moore Trophy. Steve Kern took home his third consecutive RWS Trophy as the Intermediate Senior Champion. Fong was named collegiate champion and presented with the Volunteer Trophy. The Stark Trophy went to Sub Junior Champion Libby Tallberg, of the Bridgeport Connecticut Rifle Club, while Sarah Elzer shot her way to the Any Sight only championship.

After a hiatus, Fred Cole, multiple Intermediate and Senior National Champion, returned to Perry and was recognized at the awards ceremony with a standing ovation. By coincidence, or perhaps the subtle sense of humor of the statistical office, Cole was assigned firing point 88, his age. With an impish smile, the retired English teacher commented that he hoped that would happen each year until he fired on point 100.

Team competition was a junior walk over. The Texas State Rifle Association Gold Team of Garret Sterns, Samuel Muegge, Garrett Rabel and Katie Bridges under the watchful eye of Coach Don Benson and Captain Hannah Muegge beat out the Black Hawk 3P Chiefs by two points to capture both the national metallic sight open and junior titles.

Upon the conclusion of the position team matches the United States William Drew Cup Team assembled on the far left of the range. San Muegge, Brian Jylkka, Caitlin Morrissey, Amanda Luoma, Mike Burzynski, Isaac Tucker, Margot Lee, Remington Lyman, Lenny Smittner and Dianna Binnie were selected to fire the international postal, sponsored by the National Smallbore Rifle Association of Great Britain (NSRA). This tournament is considered to be the junior equivalent of the Dewar Trophy Match. James R. Ward, of the NSRA, served as witness as the team fired under the leadership of Captain Hap Rocketto, Coach Erik Hoskins and Adjutant Walt Walters.

The five days of prone opened under a gray sky that promised—and delivered, rain. Showers struck twice in the morning, both times on the unfortunate first relay. Roberts Team veteran Dave Cramer, Aliquippa, PA, struck first with a 400-36X victory in the first metallic sight Dewar. As conditions worsened, Jim Ward of Great Britain shot the better of only two perfect scores posted in the 100-yard match—a 400-28X. The other, produced by Jylkka, was a 400-24X. At the 50-meter line Barnhart and Justin Tracy were knotted up at 400-32X each, but the rulebook declared Barnhart winner.

Veterans of the recent Metric Championships topped the first day's results list with identical scores of 1198. West coast rifleman Eitan Barazani shot 95Xs and Mark Delcotto, a Kentucky shooter with a strong resume in long range shooting, was second with 87Xs. Charlie Kemp, reigning metric senior champion, was in third with 76Xs.

The popular Randle Doubles/Mentor match, in which teams of one experienced and one inexperienced shooter compete against each other over the Dewar Course, ended the day. Run by the NRA Smallbore Committee, the match was won by Rick Curtis and Amanda McMullin with a score of 799-59X from a field of 55 teams.

Day two saw Claudia Duksa, Bell City Connecticut Rifle Club, win a tie-breaker when she and Abalo both shot a 400-34X in the second metallic sight Dewar. Like the first day, the conditions got tougher as the 100-yard targets were hung. Just three 400s appeared on the bulletin with the winning score of 400-29X belonging to Bart Parnell. The 2009 Expert class champ—Catherine Kauffelt, had a 24X clean while Paul Gideon, with a 400-15X, was the final perfect score shot. Kemp closed the day by winning the Meter match with a 400-35X followed by Barnhart's 400-33X and Parnell's 400-31X.

Perry veteran Boyd Goldsby shot consistently throughout the day and emerged the winner of the second daily aggregate with a near perfect 1199-89X. Parnell followed with a higher X count but a point shy of Goldsby, as Kemp snapped up third with an 1198-87X.

Kemp's aggregate score of 2396-163X gained him the Hoppe Memorial Trophy as the metallic sight champion as well as the Walt Tomsen Trophy as senior champion. Peter Church came in second and Barnhart was third with scores of 2394-166X and 2393-176X respectively. Nancy Tompkins-Gallagher, the only woman to win the national high power championship, was the Peters Trophy winner as high woman with a 2390-161X. Intermediate senior Bill Burkert, of Fleetwood, PA, 2392-163X, was the Gates Trophy winner.

With the end of the iron sight phase comes the excitement of team day. The United States Dewar Team assembled in the early morning on Viale Range while the Whistler Boy Teams drew ammunition and set up on Rodriguez. Under the direction of Captain Paul Nordquist and Coach Mike Anti, the Dewar Team laid out mats and focused spotting scopes from points one to twenty in order of finish in the metallic sight matches with Kemp, Church, Barnhart, Abalo, Burkert, Rick Curtis, Barazani, Goldsby, Larry Sawyer, Tompkins-Gallagher, Tracy, Dan Holmes, Kevin Nevius, Amanda McMullin, Frederick Scielzo, Shawn Wells, Delcotto, Cramer, Ron Wigger and Dennis Lindenbaum. Alternates were Parnell and Michael O'Connor with Jim Ward as witness. Scielzo, known as "Fast Freddy" to his shooting cronies and a Perry Veteran of a half of a century, was heard to say that he had often come close to making the Dewar, but that this was his first appearance on the roster.

With the Whistler Boys still shooting and the Dewar target frames set at 100 yards, it was time for the Randle Ladies to take to the line. Team Captain Martha Kelley, with the assistance of Coach Lenore Lemanski, set to the task at hand with Tompkins-Gallagher, McMullin, Bobbi Vitito, Ginger McLemore, Duksa, Edie Fleeman, Kauffelt, Alyssa Gestl, Michelle Bower and Amy Bock on the line while alternates Abigail Stanec and Nicole Allaire stood by in support. The Dunn Trophy, presented to the highest scorer on the Randle Team, was a toss up between Tompkins-Gallagher and McMullin who tied with 400-31X. An X count of 16 at 100 yards broke the tie in Tompkins-Gallagher's favor.

As the Whistler Boy competition wound down and scores were posted, the Texas contingent added to an impressive growing team trophy total as Benson again coached the long-horn team of Sam Muegge and Katie Bridges to the gold. The score of 1905-71X came from a combined 60 shot three-position match and Dewar, all shot on metric targets.

The 50th International Shooting Sports Federation World Championship coincided with Perry this year and, losing shooters to that event, the Army was so short-handed that it was not able to enter a team in the position matches and barely able to field one in prone. However, what they did have was pretty good (witness Barnhart's performance) and they took the Any Sight team championship with the only 1600 of the day. With SGT Nicole Allaire as team captain Abalo and Barnhart teamed up with SFC Josh Olson and SFC Mike Moore to break the civilian hold on national team titles.

The Any Sight championship began on a blistering hot day with a two-way 400-34X tie between Delcotto and Erin Gestl in the Dewar Match. Delcotto won on the tie breaker. As happened all week, conditions took a quick downward turn at 100 yards and only one 400, fired by Doug Mentlik, of Glen Rock, PA, was recorded. The day ended with yet another tie when Nevius and Bill Neff both shot 400-33X, with Nevius the winner. Consistent, but not flashy, Barnhart emerged the winner of the day with an 1198-82X, just a point ahead of Delcotto and Brad Driscoll.

Twenty brave souls braved the sweltering afternoon heat and humidity and entered the Made In America Match. Scielzo who won the match some years ago, continued on his roll and took the match with a 397-24X, 6Xs ahead of Drew Team veteran Elijah Ellis. Jordan Turiano, a young Massachusetts competitor, used a pre-A Winchester 52, leaf sight and all, to win the most original rifle award.

The final, and deciding day, opened with Barnhart, Kemp, Abalo, Nevius and Berkert all within five points of each other. The temperature had dropped but the pleasant sunny day harbored some tricky wind. Even with a two-point pad on Kemp, it would not be a cakewalk for Barnhart. One small error on Barnhart's part and Kemp might replace Lones Wigger as the oldest competitor to win the prone Championship.

Ross Ewert burst onto the scene to take the second Any Sight Dewar match with a 400-34X. Barnhart, Nevius, Burkert, and Abalo stayed clean but Kemp went for a point. A photo finish at 100 yards saw Barnhart and Nevius finished first and second. Kemp also cleaned it while Abalo dropped two points. Burkert dropped out of contention after losing four. At the meter line none of the heavy hitters were in the top three as Neff won the match with a 400-37X.

The last daily aggregate went to Nevius's 1199-97X, who lost a point in the Meter Match. With the same score, right down to the X count, Barnhart had dropped his point at 100 yards in the Dewar and was relegated to second. The daily win was bitter sweet for Nevius for, while the dropped point at Meters gave him the day on a tie breaker, it cost him third over all in the grand aggregate.

All that remained was for the computer to total up the numbers to determine the Any Sight and over all winners. Army's SSG Barnhart became the new Any Sight champion with a 2397-179X, Nevius was second with a 2395-195X with Abalo's 2394-172X worthy of third. Alyssa Gestl was high woman; Kemp, high senior; and Greg Tomsen repeated as the intermediate senior champion.

While others faltered, Barnhart held on with a 4790-355X and won his second national championship in eight days. It was a sweet victory in light of the disaster he endured the previous year where he may well have won had he not lost track of time and failed to fire eight shots. He now joins Lones Wigger and Joe Hein as the only riflemen to ever double up. Barnhart also won the service category. Abalo was second with a 4786-344X and Kemp took the bronze and the civilian and senior titles with a 4786-338X. McMullin was high woman and intermediate junior champ and Goldsby was high intermediate senior.

Certainly the enduring memory that one took away from this Camp Perry, over and above the fierce competition and genial fellowship, was the performances of 69-year-old Charlie Kemp, a kid by comparison, and the Octogenarian pair of Cole and Scielzo. In prone Scielzo was 24th, closely followed by 91-year-old Joe Farmer in 28th place. This was matched by the domination of juniors and women in team matches and position shooting which unquestionably demonstrates that shooting is a gender-neutral sport that lasts a lifetime. ☺

NRA NATIONAL HIGH POWER RIFLE CHAMPIONSHIPS

Story and Photos by Chip Lohman, Managing Editor

The good shooting conditions for this year's high power championships were only part of the reason for the tremendous scores. Army's

Sherri Gallagher and Carl Bernosky both shot personal bests with exceptionally consistent performances all week. Gallagher won eight first place awards this year of the 12 events that constitute the tournament. Although Gallagher has many match trophies in her collection, it may surprise you to know that this was her first Camp Perry win. And what a breakout performance it was. Despite oppressive heat and humidity, Gallagher looked fresh at all stages of the week-long competition, leading some to refer to her as "Superwoman." Perhaps fueled by the memory of a crossfire in 2009, Gallagher looked as focused as ever as she methodically executed her shot sequence more than 250 times during the across-the-course match. Using the same cartridge and equipment as the year before, she improved her score by 14 points with 13 additional Xs, setting a new national record in the process. Her score of 2396-161X replaces David Tubb's 2003 record of 2389-138X.

An afternoon rainstorm on the second day resulted in a re-shoot of the 600-yard slow fire event. Rule 9.11 Matches Not Complete, states: "When a match or stage is not completed by all competitors in accordance with the tournament schedule, the match or stage may be rescheduled or cancelled." Rather than cancel it, the entire field re-fired at the end of the next day's scheduled matches, resulting in a very long day that began before dawn and finished after 5:00 p.m. While it had no effect on his ultimate match rifle standing, second-place winner Carl Bernosky was able to regain two points as a result of the re-fire. Bernosky improved his score this year by 9 points over his 2009 showing, achieving a personal best. "That's what it's all about—doing your best," said

In the service rifle match, Army SFC Grant Singley returned to the winner's podium this year in the number three position, having raised the bar last year by establishing a new national record of 2385-102X which still stands.

Marine reservist Sgt. Eric Swearingen won it this year, bettering his 2009 score of 2363-87X by 18 points. Swearingen, a 2001 graduate of Toledo Christian High School, is stationed at El Cajon, CA. Army Marksmanship Unit's SFC Ty Cooper took second place.

This year introduced an Any Sight Match /Tactical Rifle category to the championships. Albert Wood of Merrillan, WI, won the category's inaugural year with a 2308-44X. See this month's Shooters News section on this new discipline.

From National High Power Rifle Manager Jan Raab: "The awards ceremony recognized the over 200 volunteers who braved long, hot days to make this event possible. From the most visible people on the line to the support people in the background (registration, awards, media, statistics, etc.) whom shooters never see, they all accomplished their mission and are part of this record-setting performance. I also want to thank the Ohio National Guard for their enthusiastic support. Without them, this Championship would just not be possible."

With flags flying "straight out," this was the year for wind shooters to excel.

NRA NATIONAL LONG RANGE RIFLE CHAMPIONSHIPS

Story and Photos by

Attendance at this year's Long Range matches was up by 11.2 percent. Says Jan Raab, National High Power Rifle Manager: "We almost filled the Palma Individual Match to range capacity this year. It's really great to see the interest in long range shooting increasing as we look forward to the World Long Range Championships next year in Amsterdam, and again in 2015 when the United States will host this prestigious event."

Of the 354 long-range entrants, about half of them came to Camp Perry to compete in this weekend portion of the tournament. The remaining competitors also participated in the

across-the-course high power matches in the previous week.

While the Greek God of wind, Aeolus, may have slept during the across-the-course events, he awoke in time for the long-range firing. (Click the video link on page 22 to see the range flags flying at this year's matches.)

After a two-year absence from the top of the winner's podium, John Whidden returned for his third long range victory at Camp Perry, having won previously in 2007 and 2008. A new course was established in 2007, prior to which David Tubb was the record holder and five-time champion. Recently retired CMP Director Gary Anderson also won this event in 1980.

As a 4-H member, first-place

Whidden began his shooting career with a BB gun, limiting his long range accomplishments back then to about 15 feet! After several state trap championship wins, he shot in high school with the JROTC rifle team where he became accomplished in 3-position air rifle. After graduating from North Georgia College where he was a member of their rifle team, Whidden eventually found his way back to the sport through long-range shooting.

If the name Brandon Green sounds familiar, it may be because second-place Sgt. Green won six championships this year, including the overall individual championship during the inter-service matches at Quantico, VA. Green was also the first recipient of CMP's Junior Distinguished Badge back in 2001. He later became double distinguished while competing with the Army Marksmanship Unit.

Third-place Michelle Gallagher is part of the "First Family of Rifle Shooting," having won this match in 1998, 2000 and 2001. When not competing, Michelle works with Berger Bullets as their marketing coordinator. As you may know, her younger sister Sherri holds the long range record set in 2009 and her mother Nancy has won the event three times as well. It's not hard to imagine what this family discusses at the dinner table when they get together.

"Artillery guns" such as these are the tool of choice to place a bullet into a 10-inch X ring from 1,000 yards. Doping the wind, of course, is all up to the shooter.

ACCURACY VS. BULLET SPEED

I am confused by the term 'wind bucking ability' as well as by the practical effect of it. Possibly you can help me by advising whether there is any generally agreed acceptance of the terms 'wind bucking' and 'wind drift'. For example, in Gen. Hatcher's interesting reply to Mr. Snap, on page 104 of the September RIFLEMAN, he uses the term wind drift and states that the higher speed .22 has approximately 37% more wind drift than the slower bullet of the same shape and weight. Likewise, some of the more recent ads for bullets are stressing lower velocities for more accuracy. This of course ties in with Gen. Hatcher's comments.

I can understand what is said about the difference in the delay in flight between the 2 bullets, but I cannot figure out why greater accuracy or shot uniformity should result. Assuming still air, would not the effect of increased air resistance be a constant and could it not be calibrated for in the sighting of the arm?—D.G.

Answer: I can sympathize with your feeling of confusion about the various terms used to describe the displacement of a bullet from its line of aim by a cross wind. I think the best term to use would be wind deflection and that the term drift should be used for the tendency of a bullet to deviate to the right for bullets having a right-hand spin, or to the left for bullets having a left-hand spin, without regard to any cross wind. However, wind drift implies the existence of a wind so perhaps we can accept that term without too much strain. Of course, wind bucking indicates the ability of a bullet to withstand wind deflection or wind drift or whatever you want to call that effect.

Your question about the reason for the greater accuracy of certain lower velocity .22's is a good one. This increase in accuracy does not come because the velocity is lower, but simply because the velocity is selected so as to take the bullet out of that range of velocity which coincides with the speed of sound in air.

When a bullet moves through the air it sets up shock waves due to the compression of the air by the moving bullet. These shock waves move at the speed of sound under the conditions of temperature, humidity, and density of the air. When the bullet has a speed lower than the velocity of sound, the shock waves move faster than the bullet does, and they move away from it without causing any disturbance in its flight. Again, when the bullet has a speed considerably above that of sound, the bullet runs away from the shock waves it generates. However, when the bullet has a speed just about equal to sound the shock waves ride right along with it for a time, and they exert a buffeting effect that can be disturbing to accuracy.

Another thing, when a bullet has a speed that is almost the same as that of sound, the unavoidable variations in velocity from one bullet to the next will cause some bullets to encounter this buffeting action and other bullets not to encounter it. That can again cause a considerable disturbance to accuracy. For ammunition of a rather uniform velocity, either above or below the critical velocity of sound, it is possible to calibrate for the effect in the sighting of the arm as you suggest, but at that critical velocity the effect is too variable to be taken care of satisfactorily in this way.—J.S.H. ©
